

Sketch Recall

Recommended number of players: 3–8 players

Estimated game duration: 7–20 minutes

Players listen to a sequence of 25 spoken nouns and quickly sketch each word in a numbered 5×5 grid. After the drawing phase, all drawing boards are hidden. Players must first complete two or three short distraction questions, such as general knowledge or simple mathematics questions. This prevents them from relying only on their immediate memory. The game then enters the recall phase, where players must identify the original words represented by selected drawings. The game can be played in either a Cooperative Mode or a Competitive Mode.

Cooperative mode:

Objective:

All players work together to recover as many of the original words as possible before the team runs out of lives.

Game rules:

1. Each player receives the same type of private 5*5 drawing board containing 25 numbered squares
2. The system randomly selects 25 simple nouns and announces them one at a time.
3. There is 3-5 second interval between each word.
4. When a word is announced, the corresponding numbered square is highlighted. Each player must quickly draw a simple picture representing that word in the highlighted square.
5. Players cannot write the word itself, use letters or numbers, or give written hints. They must represent the meaning through a drawing.
6. After all 25 words have been announced, the drawing phase ends. All drawing boards are locked and hidden.
7. Before the recall phase begins, the system presents 2 or 3 short distraction questions. These may be simple general knowledge or mathematics questions. For example: what is $8 * 9$? How many days are there in a leap year? What is the capital city of Australia?
8. The distraction questions do not affect the players' main game scores. Their purpose is to interrupt short-term memory before the recall phase begins.
9. After the distraction questions, the system randomly selects a grid position.
10. The system then randomly selects and displays one team member's drawing from that grid position.
11. The selected drawing is shown anonymously, so the other players do not initially know who created it.
12. Every player except the person whose drawing is being shown independently submits what they believe the original word was.
13. Players cannot see the answers submitted by other team members before the question ends.
14. A question is considered successful only when more than half of the eligible players submit the correct answer.
15. If more than half of the eligible players answer correctly, the team earns one point.
16. If half or fewer of the eligible players answer correctly, the question is unsuccessful and the team loses one life.

17. After everyone has submitted an answer, or when the answer timer runs out, the system reveals the original word, the displayed drawing, each player's submitted answer, the number of correct answers, and whether the team achieved a majority.

18. The team starts with a limited number of lives, such as 3.

19. The team wins by reaching a target score before losing all of its lives.

20. If the team loses all of its lives before reaching the target score, the team loses the game.

The team may also receive a limited number of special abilities, such as:

Gallery Peek: briefly display the drawings created by all team members for the selected grid position before players submit their answer.

Category Hint: reveal the category of this word.

Each ability can only be used once during the entire game. Before players submit their answers, they may vote on whether to use one of the available abilities. The ability is activated only if more than half of the eligible players vote in favour. If the vote does not receive a majority, the ability is not used and remains available for a later question. Once an ability has been activated, it cannot be used again during that game.

Competitive mode:

Objective:

Players compete individually to earn the highest score by correctly remembering the words linked to different grid positions.

Game rules:

1. Each player receives a private 5*5 drawing board containing 25 numbered squares.
2. The system randomly selects 25 simple nouns and announces them one at a time.
3. There is 3-5 second interval between each word.
4. When a word is announced, the corresponding numbered square is highlighted. Each player must quickly draw a simple picture representing that word in the highlighted square.
5. Players cannot write the word itself, use letters or numbers, or give written hints. They must represent the meaning through a drawing.
6. After all 25 words have been announced, the drawing phase ends. All drawing boards are locked and hidden.
7. Before the recall phase begins, the system presents 2 or 3 short distraction questions. These may be simple general knowledge or mathematics questions. For example: what is $8 * 9$? How many days are there in a leap year? What is the capital city of Australia?
8. The distraction questions do not affect the players' main game scores. Their purpose is to interrupt short-term memory before the recall phase begins.
9. After the distraction questions, the system then selects grid numbers in a random order and asks questions such as "What was word number 8?"
10. The related drawing may be displayed when the question is asked. Depending on the selected game settings, players may see their own drawing or an anonymous drawing created by another player.
11. Players press a Buzz button to answer.
12. The first player to buzz has 5 second to submit an answer.

13. A correct answer earns one point.
14. If the first player gives an incorrect answer or does not submit an answer within 5 seconds, the question is reopened and the other players may buzz and try to answer it.
15. Each player may attempt the same question only once.
16. If no player answers correctly, the system reveals the correct word.
17. After each question, the correct word and the related drawings are revealed.
18. At the end of the game, the player with the highest total score wins.
19. If two or more players have the same highest score, the system presents a tie-breaker question. The first tied player to answer correctly wins.
